Picture this: you're working hard on the final stages of your dissertation, only to discover the file's size is too big. Before you can even complete the process, you realize it will take several hours (or days) to compress it to the size you'd like to share with your friends and colleagues. Worse, your thesis advisor has already seen the file and expressed his disappointment over its size (or maybe you even uploaded it on the university's online service for your friends and colleagues to view). Picture this scenario any way you want, but that moment is really a nightmare for most people. Fortunately, in this day and age, the process of optimizing a PDF file to a specific size has become a lot easier. You can use the software just by dragging the file on the interface, and in seconds the PDF will be optimized to your desired size. PDFLight is the best software to optimize PDFs to a specific size PDFLight is an easy-to-use and straightforward software that does exactly what you want - optimize your PDF files to a desired size, and even though it doesn't allow much control over its work, its speed, simplicity, and overall functionality makes it quite the recommended solution. You can get PDFLight from here for a single user license for a one-time fee of 49.95 USD, but if you would like to try the software for a free 30-day trial, you can do so by clicking here. Feb 09

What's New In?

PDFLight is a user-friendly piece of software designed from the ground up to make it as easy and as quickly as possible for you to reduce the size of your PDF files, without compromising their quality by a great extent. Getting down to what is important, the application undergoes a streamlined and surprise-free installation process, subsequent to which it can be launched and used right off the bat, without requiring any type of configuration on your part. In fact, besides the fact that it helps you optimize PDF files and reduce their sizes, its overall simplicity is the app's main 'selling point'.

Consequently, the workflow is reduced to you having to drag and drop the files from their location onto the utility's main window (or load them view the 'Browse...' button), and that is really about it. Straightforward workflow Once the files have been loaded, the app automatically optimizes and overwrites them in their original destination. You can get a clear description regarding the effectiveness of the optimization process as the utility displays the files' original sizes, their new sizes and the reducing factor in percentages. At this point, you can either proceed to reduce the size of the following PDF or view the already processed one in Explorer thanks to the two dedicated buttons. Effortlessly optimize your PDFs All in all, PDFLight is clearly not what you would call a professional or a comprehensive application since it does not allow much user control over the optimization process. Regardless, its accessibility and speed recommend it for users who simply need to reduce the sizes of their PDFs as much as possible, in the shortest period and with the least amount of effort. Automated characterization of PET and PET/MRI data: A comparative study of quantitative metrics. PET/MRI is an emerging hybrid imaging modality in oncology. The aim of this study was to investigate the ability of an automated segmentation algorithm for PET and PET/MRI to provide reliable quantitative PET and PET/MRI image measures. Data from 25 patients (11 men and 14 women, age range = 36-82 years) with renal cell carcinoma who underwent both PET and PET/MRI were retrospectively reviewed. All patients underwent contrast-enhanced PET/MRI after i.v. administration of 10-20 mCi (370-740 MBq) of fluorine-18 fluorodeoxyglucose. Two readers evaluated the PET and PET/MRI images independently, obtaining standardized uptake values (SUVs) for the kidneys, aorta
